WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch, whose unprecedented confrontation with critics within his own department was called off when he was suddenly hospitalized, plans to reschedule the mass meeting as soon as he is able.

Finch called the session for Monday to discuss charges from HEW employees that he has let important policy matters drift from his hands, particularly dealing with civil rights. But an hour-and-a-half before the afternoon meeting, Finch was rushed to Walter Reed Army Hospital with numbness in his left arm and hand.

HEW Undersecretary John G. Veneman told the department employees who filled an auditorium and several other rooms of Finch's ailment and said the secretary would reschedule the meeting at the earliest possible time. He then read the statement Finch had prepared for the meeting.

In that statement, Finch generally defended Nixon administration domestic and foreign policies, but conceded he and other top agency officials may have become isolated from dissenting opinion both within and without the department.

Finch appeared to take issue with President Nixon's plea for a lowering of voices, saying, "It is not sufficient simply to lower our voices. We must sincerely want to listen, and to understand what people really are trying to say to one another."

At another point, Finch rapped criticism of universities, an apparent reference to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's continuing attacks on student dissidents and campus officials.

"We must recognize, while we continue to exhort institutions to renewal, what a superb job the universities by and large have done," he said.

He also attempted to quiet rumors that HEW planned no longer to withhold federal funds from school districts that refuse to desegregate.

Citing the recent termination of funds to Pewitt, Tex., last week, he said, "Others will be ripe for termination shortly, and unless they negotiate acceptable desegregation plans, they will be terminated."

A scattering of applause broke out after Veneman finished reading Finch's talk.

Finch also endorsed student involvement in politics, but declined to support vacations for students at universities this fall. He said he would work in local political campaigns.

Drug Search Bothersome to Tourists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign visitors and returning American tourists will have a tougher time clearing customs, especially on the East and Gulf coasts, when a new government crackdown on narcotics smuggling begins about June 1.

The Customs Bureau is beginning the new effort as part of its intensified campaign against "hard" drugs—mainly heroin and cocaine.

Details are still in the discussion stage, but Asst. Treasury Department Secretary Eugene T. Rossides confirmed Monday the plan will go into effect with an "increase in enforcement intensity throughout the nation, with emphasis on the Northeast and Southeastern quadrants."

Coverage will extend as far west as New Orleans, he said, and presumably also will affect at least part of the Canadian border, although a Customs spokesman maintained it will be a uniform nationwide increase.

Treasury and Customs officials knew the program as "Operation Able" in its initial discussion stages, but Rossides is against such a name because it might be associated with Operation Intercept, the one-month effort to curtail marijuana smuggling across the Mexico border last fall.

Intercept was changed to Operation Cooperation after the Mexican government and border businessmen complained it was hurting their business and tourism. The Mexicans agreed, however, to take tougher actions against marijuana growers and some officials in Treasury say that was its major goal.

In contrast, Rossides said, the new program will be a "permanent upgrading of the enforcement," although there may occasionally be "an extra-special increase," or periods of rigorous "blitz" inspections lasting a few hours.

Stiffer customs inspections are only one part of the government's effort to curtail narcotics, which President Nixon made an objective of foreign policy last year.

Diplomats are trying to reach agreement with France and Turkey, where the government says 80 per cent of smuggled heroin comes from.

Nixon's staff report agreement with France, which has its own addiction problem to spur it along, and are optimistic about new controls on poppy growth in Turkey.

Anti-Busing Candidate Tells Views

By ROBERT SHAW

Associated Press Writer
 LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Charles A. Brown describes himself as "moderately conservative" but says other persons have drawn other conclusions about his political philosophy.

For instance, one newspaper has called him a segregationist, says Brown who has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor.

He denies that he is. "Anyone is entitled to his basic civil rights," said the 40-year-old Little Rock lawyer in an interview. "We should be fair to all groups."

He said, however, that he opposed busing to achieve racial balance because a school district that chooses busing "is making a choice based on a person's race, and that is prohibited by the Constitution."

Brown has been on the Little Rock School Board since 1968. Other than this two years as a justice of the peace, this is his first service as a public office holder.

He said he ran for the School Board because of his opposition to the Parsons Plan, a plan of school desegregation proposed by School Supt. Floyd Parsons that involved some busing of students.

He said the plan was a "sociological approach" to the educational system. "We need to provide an education first climate," Brown said.

Brown, a native of Greenwood, Miss., went on television Saturday night to announce his candidacy for governor.

Although he has not yet paid his filing fee for the office, Brown said he was in the race to stay "tempered with the fact that I find adequate financial support so I won't bankrupt myself." He said he anticipated filing "late" before the June 16 deadline.

Brown said he guessed that six or seven of the approximately 16 potential candi-

Records showed that Hodges was convicted of forcing his way into an apartment in Jonesboro and beating with a .22-caliber pistol two young women he found there. Records show that after beating the women, the man dropped the pistol and fled.

Hodges was sentenced to one year in jail for assault with a deadly weapon with the term running concurrently with the burglary sentence.

In December 1967, Hodges was acquitted of a first-degree murder charge in the death of Mrs. Virginia Ann Price, 44, of St. Charles, Mo.

Mrs. Price's partially clad body was found on a rural road near Pinebluff. Her blouse was tied around her neck and chin. The state contended that Hodges strangled Mrs. Price after a drinking spree with her and two companions.

A pathologist testified at the trial that the exact cause of death was not determinable. An all-male jury deliberated about two hours before finding Hodges innocent.

teletypes and television.

The central computer is at State Police headquarters in East Lansing.

This is how it works: Michigan, Arizona, California, Florida, Maryland, Minnesota and New York are each busily putting 10,000 criminal records into shape for computer storage.

Each individual whose files are computerized will be identified by a code stored at the State Police computer center.

One state will tell the computer it wants to know which other states have records on a certain individual.

The computer will search the identification files and report the results.

The whole process would take only a few minutes, as opposed to the great delays now involved in thumbing through sheafs of paper and exchanging information by phone or mail.

Three states not involved in the computer connection system at this point—Connecticut, Texas and Washington—are nonetheless going through the complicated process of coding information into computer talk or participating in other segments of the demonstration.

Five other states—Colorado, Illinois, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania—are observing the system and may join in it if it is judged to be successful.

dates for the nomination would file, but that there might be more if former Gov. Orval E. Faubus does not enter the race.

Brown said it was time the Democratic party found new leaders — "new faces, new ideas." He said Faubus had had "his day."

He described himself as a person who was willing to accept change "but change that has an excellent chance of being workable — that's what we need at this time."

"We cannot waste our financial base on programs that do not have a good chance of being workable," he said.

Brown said one of the factors that entered his decision to run for governor was that he felt the state was drifting from a "high moral tone" that had made it and the nation strong.

"There has been an eroding of our judicial process that strikes right at the basis of the American system," he said. "We need to have a sensible approach to civil rights, the economy, our educational system."

He said he ran for the School Board because of his opposition to the Parsons Plan, a plan of school desegregation proposed by School Supt. Floyd Parsons that involved some busing of students.

He said the plan was a "sociological approach" to the educational system. "We need to provide an education first climate," Brown said.

U.S., Russian Fleets Taunt One Another

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. and Russian navies appear to be exchanging some needling by showing the flag near each other's home spheres.

The American destroyers O'Hare and Mullinex were due to enter the Black Sea today for what are called "routine operations" lasting about four days.

Meanwhile a seven-ship Soviet squadron, including three submarines, a cruiser and a destroyer, is visiting the Cuban port of Cienfuegos after a voyage through the Caribbean.

The United States last sent war ships from the Mediterranean into the Black Sea, which Russia considers home waters, less than two months ago.

This is the shortest interval between such cruises in the more than 10 years since the United States began using this means to make the point that the Black Sea is not a Russian lake.

Generally the pattern worked out to two U.S. destroyer voyages a year into the Black Sea.

Then last July the Russians sent a seven-ship naval force on a rare visit to Cuba and the Gulf of Mexico. American officers regarded this as a pointed demonstration of a lengthening Soviet naval reach into waters long dominated by the United States.

Following that Soviet exercise, the U.S. Navy ordered two destroyers into the Black Sea in September and the interval between these trips was cut to three months. Now the Russians are back in Cuba.

Naval officers claim there is no connection between the new Russian visit to Cuba and this impending voyage of the O'Hare and the Mullinex.

It was noted, however, the U.S. Navy raised quite a public fuss about a worldwide Soviet naval exercise which ran until late April. Official announcement of the new U.S. destroyer trip into the Black Sea followed early this month.

Naval sources said the O'Hare and Mullinex will stay in international waters, making no port calls while in the Black Sea.

As in the past, the Russians are expected to shadow the U.S. war ships with planes and surface escorts but probably will make no direct contact.

Foreigners Are More Confident of U.S. Than Americans Are

By CAROLE MARTIN

AP Business Writer

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — European and Canadian bankers say they are confident the United States will solve its economic problems, even though some Americans seem pessimistic.

"I often think I am far more confident about America's future than most of the people who live here," remarked John Young, chairman of Canada's Prices and Income Commission, during the American Bankers Association International Monetary Conference here Monday.

Allen T. Lambert, chairman of the Toronto Dominion Bank, put it this way:

"Your own people can contribute to a credibility gap which we don't feel. If you persist, then we must have doubts, but I think there is a little too much questioning of the sincerity of the people whom we feel are honestly trying to solve your problems."

Earlier, Dr. Peter B. Kenen, an economist and provost of Columbia University, had told conference participants he believed that the political effects of U.S. intervention in Cambodia would make the Nixon administration's attempt to curb inflation more difficult.

Kenen said he believed widening the war in Indochina would lessen Nixon's "moral capacity" to convince the country of a need to restrain wage and price increases.

A Venetian banker said he felt many Americans underestimated their country's potential for doing good.

"The U.S. is one of the most vital, hard working countries in the world," said Paul Krebs, assistant general manager of Deutsche Bank in Frankfurt, Germany.

"We know the economic and political strengths of the United States," said Heinrich Treichel, a member of the managing board of Creditanstalt Dankevein in Vienna.

"The U.S. could easily combat inflation, unless hindered by internal politics. The U.S. is really not much involved in foreign trade in terms of its gross national product, so it might feel that it is all right to become isolationist, but it would diminish your people as world power No. 1."

spiral."

"This will give public opinion and the underlying competitive forces in the marketplace the maximum opportunity to work the appropriate discipline."

However, such public scrutiny apparently was rejected by the administration last fall. Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers and a leading opponent of any controls, told Congress last September:

"The government, fortunately, has no monopoly in mobilizing public opinion, and it is doubtful that in any disputed case a strong force of opinion could be marshalled for or against any price or wage action."

In addition to the watchdog agency, Romney said "the time has come for the President to lay it on the line with labor and business about the need to bring wage and price actions back into line with productivity improvement by the earliest possible date."

The administration's current attempts to explain its economic policy came under attack Monday by congressional gadfly Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee.

The Texas Democrat issued a statement saying Nixon officials have fed Congress and the public "outlandish public relations propaganda about what is happening to the American economy."

SS Coverage May Reach $10,000

By EDMOND LeBRETON

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security tax, now levied on the first $7,800 of earnings, may ultimately be imposed on earned incomes as high as $25,000 if health costs continue to rise, Congress has been told.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, made the estimate in an appearance Monday before the House Rules Committee. The committee cleared for House debate Thursday a bill including a 5 per cent increase in Social Security benefits—and also a hike in the tax base from $7,800 to $9,000. The base increase was attributed mainly to the rising cost of the Medicare program.

Mills said that if health costs continue to rise successive increases in the tax base will be needed, up to perhaps $20,000 to $25,000 by the end of the century.

The Ways and Means Committee's report on the legislation said that the committee, in a departure from previous practice, is now assuming "the maximum taxable earnings base... will be kept up to date, by periodic legislative revisions." On this basis, it expressed confidence that the Social Security funds will remain actuarially sound.

The committee held out some hope, however, that the sharp rise in hospital costs, which it estimated at 15 per cent in 1969 and 14 per cent this year, will slow down in coming years, so that the annual increase by 1978 would not be more than 4 per cent.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

THE SINS OF THE PARENTS...

Dear Readers: Anyone who writes a youth column soon discovers the Number One problem with young people is—parents! Some of the hassles are small and respond well to my "Three C's Therapy": Consideration, Communication and Compromise. But others make me think Israel's kibbutz system (of communal upbringing) has its points.

Read on, and you'll see why advice columnists often feel like beating their heads against the wall—because we can't knock sense into foolish adults who seem determined to ruin their children.

Dear Helen: I am 17 and have two problems that are too big to cope with.

About a month ago I had an abortion. In my state, this is still illegal so it was doubly degrading. I fought against it, but my parents said if I kept my baby their lives would be ruined. I didn't want them to hate me... but I can't get over hating myself.

My second problem is my mother. She told me quite a while ago she is seeing another man. I asked as if it didn't bother me, but it hurt terribly.

She expects me to lie for her so Dad won't find out. This isn't her first affair. If I tell, they'll probably both end up hating me. Social standing means a lot to them. They don't like each other, but they pretend well in public.

Do you think psychotherapy would help me? My folks can afford it. —CENTER OF A VICIOUS CIRCLE.

Dear CVC: Yes, I think psychotherapy would help a great deal, for you can pour out to the therapist all the resentment and disgust which, turning inward, has made you hate yourself. When you understand your own feelings, you'll be better able to cope with deficient parents.—H.

Dear Helen: I am in the school honor society, but I don't say anything about it at home, or I get called "egghead." I was elected president of the Science Club and I came home all excited, but all I got was "Okay, change your clothes and get busy on the yard work." I made my letter in track, hoping my father might notice. He didn't.

The one thing my folks noticed about me was something that got me grounded for two months, and that means no phone calls or even going out to the library! I bought a copy of an underground newspaper because I was curious and there was a good article on the front page. My mother read some of the ads! I guess she must think I'm going to answer them.

Helen is there any use trying when your parents understand—and appreciate you—so little? —JOHN

Dear John: That depends on whether you are trying to succeed for your parents—or for yourself and your own bright future. It's rough, not being understood or appreciated at home, but you DO get recognition at school. Let that sustain you. Keep aiming high, and resolve that you'll change the pattern with YOUR kids.

I've an idea your folks are long on punishment and short on praise because they were raised that way, as were their parents before them. Breaking the mold isn't easy! Sometimes the traits we resent most in our mothers or fathers are the very things we must fight hardest to eliminate in our adult selves—as you'll probably discover 15 years from now.—H.

Dear Helen: I am 14 and live with my father. Our parents have been divorced for two years. Maybe you know what it's like to come home from school one day and find that your mother and all her clothes are gone. I found out! Well, Mom remarried and, three weeks afterwards, left her

Social Security Quizz

By KEN HARGIS

If you have any questions regarding social security, I invite your letters. Just send them to Ken Hargis, Social Security Administration, P.O. Box 1319, Texarkana, Texas 75501.

Question: My husband and I have been separated for 10 years but we are not divorced. He will be 65 this year and plans to retire. Can I receive social security payments as his wife although we are separated. I am 62 years old.

Answer: Yes, you will be entitled to wife's benefits based on your husband's social security record even though you are separated.

Question: My two children and I have been receiving social security payments since my husband's death years ago. Will our payments stop if I remarry?

Answer: Your own social security payments will stop if you remarry, but the children will continue to receive their benefits.

Question: I am receiving social security payments for my son. My present husband plans to adopt him. Will his social security payments stop when he is adopted?

Answer: No, a child may continue to receive social security payments after he is adopted, if the adoption is by the child's stepparent, grandparent, aunt, uncle, brother, or sister. Adoption by someone else would stop the child's payments.

Question: I just moved recently and changed my address with the Post Office. Will they send my social security check on to me?

Answer: They will forward it to you for a while, but you should advise your social security office of the change so the checks can be sent to your correct address.

Question: If my wife goes to work and earns over $1680, will it stop our social security check?

Answer: She would lose some or all of her benefits, depending on her total earnings, but your benefit would not be affected.

She and Dad took them to the carnival and left me home. They're away at the mountains this week, and I'm "babysitting" my three younger sisters again for Mom. It seems that I'm going to be the housekeeper and nursemaid and, so far, I get most of the blame too.

I have an aunt I love very much and she once said she wanted me to live with her so her daughter would have a "sister." Would I be letting Dad down if I told her how things were with me? —NOT WANT-ED ANYWHERE

Dear NWA: By all means, write to your aunt and tell her the whole story. You won't be letting your father down nearly so much as both your parents have let YOU down already!—H.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP)—The song says love is sweeter the second time around but those lyrics were written before NBC's "Laugh-In" started rerunning Gladys' and Arnold's December romance. In their case, it is a big bore.

"Laugh-In," however, is not the only program that loses a lot in its second time out. Neither ABC nor CBS is making rerun time any more pleasant since both are opening up more time in their hot weather schedules to reuse some elderly film features that, even in their youth, were the short end of a double feature.

At the moment, the three networks are devoting more than 14 hours a week of precious prime evening time to films originally shown in theatres, plus ABC's "Movie of the Week," 90-minute features made for initial TV use. Another four and one-half hours of movie will be added temporarily.

Old movies constitute the most important ingredient in network programming today, but almost 20 hours of them a week in prime time does make one wonder what ever happened to TV's creative initiative.

Viewers whose attention was held Monday night by a rerun of a 10-year-old Vincent Price horror movie were not likely to stick around for the short documentary that followed. It was a worthy one, "Missing in Randolph," which tried to show how those left behind felt about the battle death of a soldier in Vietnam.

Bill Hillard, who died at 21, came from Randolph, N.Y. He left a young wife, Rosemary, who spoke quietly of her sorrow and feeling of waste. Friends talked about Hillard and his future and many had tears in their eyes.

His mother reminisced about her son's growing up years in the rural community and concluded: "Any time now I read about eight or 20 or 100—well, now I feel that each one was a boy—like Bill."

The poignant program was successful in changing an impersonal statistic into a human tragedy.

Interview shows, including Frost's tend to be about as good as the visiting talent. Benny, relaxed, warm and amusing, was a great guest. He talked about old times and old friends, told favorite jokes and even supplied bits from his concert routine.

Since programs of syndicated series are broadcast at different times on different stations, the Benny interview is a Frost program to watch for.

real danger when good citizens refuse to participate in the functions of our government and other aspects of our society," he said and added, "Youth is participating to the best of its ability, but it is Adult participation we sorely need."

Tracing the history of law, the speaker went back to the Hammurabi Code of Law in the Old Testament and drew a parallel between conditions of that time and today. The similarity was remarkable in many respects. Then, on the subject of civil disobedience he asked, "Are we trying to improve on Hammurabi?"

Before the thought-provoking message, the 30 members were treated to a light-hearted pantomime of the recording, "Harper Valley P.T.A.," with Norma Jean Delaney enacting the words. During a business session, the following slate of officers for the new year was accepted unanimously: president, Dolores McBride; treasurer, LaVeta Moser; recording secretary, Margaret Park; corresponding secretary, Mary Anita Laseter.

Roses enhanced the serving tables, and the "Civic Participation" committee was in charge of arrangements for the meeting. Members of the committee were Norma Jean Delaney, Pauline Carter, Cora Evans and Zora Middlebrooks.

Old Drivers Face New Challengers

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The A. J. Foyts, Al Unser and Mario Andretti aren't likely to leave the racing scene soon, but already several youngsters are waiting in the wings to replace them.

Herb Porter, an observer of motorsports for 35 years as a driver, team manager and development expert, watched Mike Mosley zip down the front straight at Indianapolis Motor Speedway Monday and said:

"There goes one of the natural driving talents that has come into championship racing in the last two years. He'll be heard from in the future and he'll become a wealthy man if he handles himself right."

Seconds later, Unser screamed by on a lap that was clocked at 169.619 miles per hour — fastest posted at the speedway Monday as things settled down after two days of qualifying that saw 27 drivers earn starting spots in the Memorial Day field.

"Unser's a great one, too," said the grizzled Porter. "He's just reaching his prime, and if purses keep going up he will make a million dollars."

Unser, 31 and youngest of two driving brothers from Albuquerque, won the pole position Saturday with a four-lap average of 170.221 m.p.h. Mosley, at 23 one of the youngest drivers in the field, qualified his turbo-charged Offy at 166.651.

Porter is known in auto racing circles as the father of the present-day turbocharged Offy engine. He began experimenting with the little four-cylinder powerplant in 1964, when car owners were looking for cheaper engines that would match the hot overhead cam Fords.

His first test driver in the highly successful program was A.J. Foyt, but before that such names as Roger Ward, Len Sutton, Roger McCluskey, Paul Goldsmith, Paul Russo and Lloyd Ruby had driven on his teams.

Porter currently is chief of engine development for Good-year, which uses the Offy in its tire testing programs. That makes him available for consultation with crews of any of the 31 Offy-powered cars in this year's entry list.

Among other young drivers Porter singled out as future stars were Tony Adamowicz, 29, the Formula A champion last year who qualified an Eagle-Offy at 164.820; Lee Kunzman, 25, of Guttenberg, Iowa, and Sam Posey, a 26-year-old former sports car driver from Sharon, Conn. Kunzman and Posey will try to get into the field this weekend.

Meantime, 44-year-old Jack Brabham was expected to get his new car into action at the speedway today. Brabham, a three-time world champion in Grand Prix racing, said the car was held up in New York for seven days because of a trucking strike.

The car, a turbo-charged Offy of Brabham's own design, was uncrated Sunday night but the crew couldn't get it ready for practice Monday.

Talking about which 14 clubs you should carry, and how all of us have to swallow our pride to improve as golfers. I would go so far as to suggest that if you are an infrequent player with a medium or high handicap, you experiment with women's clubs.

Don't feel silly. Gay Brewer used C-9 weight clubs for a long time, and that's about as close to women's clubs as you can get and still have men's clubs. He was playing well, and he was not about to change because of a few snickers—not that anybody knew the difference.

The thing is, the distance your ball travels is related proportionately to the speed your clubhead is moving when it makes contact, if you make a decent hit. You can swing a lighter club faster than a heavier one, as even those of us who didn't learn the new math can ap-

Even Umps Baffled as Phils Lose

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

When ball two is really strike three, it follows that one run and one run don't necessarily make two.

Confronted with those mathematical uncertainties Monday night at Pittsburgh, Danny Murtagh coped with them the only way he could . . . by demanding a recount.

The Pirates nipped the floundering Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 after Manager Murtagh persuaded a confused crew of umpires to reinstate the tie-breaking run . . . which they had disallowed during the seventh inning.

The loss, 10th straight for the Phillies, dropped them into the National League East cellar. Montreal moved up from fifth by flooring the New York Mets 8-4 on a grand slam pinch hit homer by Bob Bailey in the ninth inning.

In other NL games, Houston trimmed St. Louis 6-0 behind Larry Dierker; the Chicago Cubs slugged Cincinnati 12-5 and Los Angeles edged San Diego 4-3. San Francisco and Atlanta were not scheduled.

In the American League, the New York Yankees ambushed Baltimore 10-4; Washington topped Cleveland 7-3; California whipped the Chicago White Sox 6-1 and Minnesota beat Kansas City 7-5. Oakland and Milwaukee were idle, and the Detroit-Boston game was rained out.

The fireworks began at Forbes Field when Manny Sanguillen's run-scoring double tied the game with one out in the seventh.

Sanguillen took third on Bill Mazeroski's single before right-hander Jim Bunning went to a 1-2 count on opposing pitcher Bob Moose.

Bunning's next delivery sailed past catcher Del Bates to the screen. Umpire Dave Davidson called the pitch a ball and Sanguillen raced across the plate with the lead run. Bates retrieved the ball and fired to third, nailing Mazeroski, who was trying to take two bases on the passed ball.

At the same time, Bunning appealed to Augie Donatelli, who was stationed on the basepaths, and the umpire ruled that Moose had swung and missed the pitch for a strikeout.

Davidson then nullified the run on the grounds that the inning had ended in a double play. Murtagh argued that the runner had crossed the plate before the last out was made, and announced he was completing the game under protest.

Only after a Philadelphia batter was retired in the top of the eighth did the umpires reverse their decision, allowing the run to stand.

Arkansas Wins Over Missions 6-3

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Right-hander Joe DiFabio and reliever Tim Flodinec held San Antonio to three hits Monday night to lead Arkansas to a 6-3 Texas League baseball victory over the Missions.

Arkansas scored single runs in the first and second frames and added another pair in the fourth for a commanding 4-0 lead. Meanwhile, DiFabio continued to baffle the San Antonians with a sneaky fast ball and bending curve.

The Missions narrowed the gap to 4-2 in the fifth frame by scoring a pair of runs when Arkansas center fielder Jose Cruz streaked toward the infield to snag a hard-hit liner off the bat of Murty Miller, only to watch the ball go blizzing over his head and against the fence.

Shreveport's Braves, scrambling to get out of the Eastern Division cellar, swept a Texas League doubleheader from division leader Memphis 3-1, 1-0 at Shreveport Monday night.

In other league action, Dallas-Fort Worth edged Amarillo 4-2 and Albuquerque blasted El Paso 18-3.

Flood Gets His Day in Court

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "I do not feel I am a piece of property to be bought and sold irrespective of my wishes."

Those words belong to Curt Flood, "A successful challenge to the reserve clause would mean professional baseball would cease to exist."

Those words belong to major league baseball.

And, in those two sentences, are wrapped up the central issue of the court battle that began today in Federal Court, where Flood has brought a suit challenging baseball's controversial reserve clause.

The case, in which Flood and his attorneys will attempt to prove that baseball is a monopoly operating in restraint of trade and therefore in violation of antitrust statutes, is expected to have far-reaching ramifications.

It threatens one of the four foundation blocks of organized baseball—the reserve clause which is actually a set of rules that bind a player to the team that signs him until he is traded, sold or released with or without his knowledge and approval.

It is baseball's contention, as in the words above from a joint statement issued by the two league presidents—Charles "Chub" Feeney of the National and Joe Cronin of the American — that chaotic conditions would result without the reserve system.

And, while Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, has refused to comment on the case, one baseball official said pointedly: "Baseball will fight this case to the end. There will be no compromise. We welcome the opportunity to prove the game's legality in the courts."

Flood contends that the reserve system is restrictive and that he or any traded player can be likened, in former Justice Arthur Goldberg's words, to "a high-priced slave." Goldberg, an attorney for Flood, has contended that baseball could operate successfully with the reserve clause modified.

"Football operates under antitrust laws," said Goldberg in a pre-trial hearing, "and seems to be doing pretty well."

It is considered likely, noting the polarization of the two sides in the case, that the final decision in the matter will not be reached until there is a hearing before the U.S. Supreme Court.

The issue of baseball's reserve clause has reached the Supreme Court level before and each time been upheld on the ground that baseball was a sport and not inter-state commerce. Baseball originally received such immunity from antitrust action in a 1922 court decision.

The Flood case, however, is unique because for the first time the merits of the reserve system will be argued in court. There have been prior challenges to the rules by which baseball operates but they usually wound up dealing only with the court's jurisdiction.

Judge Irving "Ben" Cooper, who is hearing the case, already has ruled "the trial must encompass the factual issues raised respecting the reserve system, hailed as a blessing by proponents, condemned as destructive by antagonists."

L.A. Stays Alive; Wins Over Pacers

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Stars are still alive — but still in jeopardy, as they resume their series tonight with the Indiana Pacers for the American Basketball Association championship.

Trailing by as many as 21 points and all but pronounced dead, the Stars came alive in the final period Monday night to defeat the Pacers, 109-106, and the best of seven series now stands 2-1 in favor of the Hoosiers.

An uproarious crowd of 5,780 — a gratifying figure for the orphan Stars — saw their adopted outfit outscore Indiana, 31 to 18, in the final quarter.

Only a pair of spectacular 3-point field goals by Fred Lewis in the final wild moments saved Indiana from a worse defeat. Scoring hero of the night was the Stars' George Stone, who had 34 for the night and 27 in the second half.

Stone had key help from Andy Anderson, especially in the last period.

Coach Bill Sharman credited the 6-2 blond with "getting the team moving" after coming out to the boards late in the third period. Anderson wound up with 12 points.

Indiana, with Lewis' total 24 points and Bill Keller with 22, led after the first period, 38-17; 60-47 at the half and 88-78 going into the final quarter.

Over a span of 11 minutes 10 seconds beginning late in the third, Indiana scored only three points, all from the foul line.

"The crowd was great—for the Stars," said Indiana coach Bob Leonard, who added, "we've got to do a better job on Stone because when he's hot there no stopping him."

Sharman praised Tom Washington for his defensive work on Mel Daniels, and said "this was the greatest comeback of the season."

Los Angeles scored first on a free throw and trailed from then on until they caught and finally passed the Pacers with about eight minutes remaining.

Road Race at Elevation Over 12,000

LIMA, Peru (AP) — H. Mikola of Finland and Gunnar Palm of Sweden pushed their Ford Escort across the finish line ahead of schedule Monday night and appeared to be maintaining their lead in the World Cup Rally.

First arrivals among the 39 driving teams that left Lapaz, Bolivia 25-hours earlier on a grueling high altitude climb through the Andes said it had easily been the roughest lap since they left England.

R. Aaltonen of Finland, who with Henry Lidden of England brought his Ford escort in third, said, "The roads were actually better than we expected, although they were pretty bad."

"It was the altitude that bothered us. The mind didn't function well and at times you tended to forget things like braking."

The route from Lapaz to Lima took the drivers along a route consistently over 12,000 feet at times more than 15,000 feet.

Second to arrive at the check point in the eastern suburbs of Lima was the Triumph team of B. Culcheth and J. Syer of Britain, and arriving fourth was the Triumph driven by P. Hopkirk and A. Nash of Britain.

The other drivers had until 6 a.m. Tuesday to reach the checkpoint here and continue in competition. Race officials here estimated 33 to 34 of the 39 cars that left Lapaz would reach here in competition.

The race continues today, with the drivers leaving on a 1,980-mile, 35-hour lap to Cali, Colombia, along the Pan American Highway, enroute to their destination, Mexico City, and the soccer World Cup.

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — The late Hirsch Jacobs, patriarch of a famous racing family, trained a world record 3,596 winners during a storied career. Incredibly, he never scored in a Triple Crown event.

But Jacobs, who died Feb. 13, received all the credit Saturday when Personality, a colt he adored, won the $203,800 Preakness at Pimlico by a neck over fast-closing My Dad George.

John Jacobs, 35, quickly tossed aside accolades for accomplishing "something your father never did."

"He did achieve it," Jacobs said, tears welling in his eyes. "He bred him. In fact, he bred Personality's sire and dam, we raced both of his grand-dams, and we even bred one of this colt's great-grand dams. So this line goes back four generations."

"This one's for Hirsch Jacobs," said John's brother, Tom. "My father masterminded it all. He was the genius who put the stable together. He won this Preakness for his family."

Hirsch Jacobs saddled Personality only once, when he finished ninth in his lone start of 1969, but from the beginning he was high on the son of Hall to Reason and predicted Personality would be the best in the Jacobs' stable.

Personality's dam, Affectionately, was not only a well-regarded campaigner but the Jacobs' family pet as well.

Hirsch Jacobs was so fond of the breeding, he commissioned a painting of the yearling colt with his dam, and even carried a picture of Personality in his wallet.

Personality didn't win stakes race until the Wood Memorial at a mile on April 18, and he finished a disappointing eighth in the Kentucky Derby on May 2. He has won five of 11 starts this year, and the $151,300 won Saturday pushed his earnings to $255,507.

Jacobs figured Personality had an excuse in the Derby. Nearing the quarter pole, and running well, the colt ducked a water puddle, almost unseated jockey Eddie Belmonte and got off stride.

Belmonte in his first Preakness start, took the lead from Silent Screen in the stretch of the 1 3/4 mile race and then barely held off the late bid of My Dad George—who had finished five lengths behind winner Dust Commander in the Derby.

Dilemma for Youth on Pro Circuit

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
ATLANTA (AP)—Bob Menne was sitting at the scorecard at Houston after the second round of the Champions International Tournament trying to decide what to do.

"I can't afford to go home and I can't afford to stay out here for a week doing nothing," said the young pro from Andover, Mass.

He'd just missed the cut for the final two rounds at Houston, wasn't eligible for the invitational tournament the following week at Fort Worth and had nothing to do until the tourney at Atlanta two weeks off.

"I'd like to go home, but the plane fare is steep," he said. "But it would cost me $25 a day to stay out here. I don't know what to do."

His dilemma was typical of those faced by some of the younger players who are scrambling to make a living. And it serves to point up the principal problems on the pro golf tour.

And, although the tour is enjoying unprecedented success both financially and popularly, it is plagued by a variety of problems that could force a change in the format of the tour.

There are problems of tour vs. local caddies. Problems about television. Problems with and about sponsors. There even are problems about security and racial questions. There is still a mild rift between the touring players and the club pro-dominated PGA.

But the problems come back to economics.

Money. That's what it's all about: Money. And the methods and systems whereby the players can compete for it.

The tour has blossomed to a $7 million a year affair. There's about that much up for grabs on the pro circuit this season, a far cry from the $10,000 tournaments of a couple of decades ago.

Ben Hogan was the leading money winner in 1948 with $32,000. Bert Green got almost that much — $28,000 — for finishing second in last year's Westchester Classic.

Hogan never had a bigger payday than $10,000. And this year there was $10,000 to Lee Trevino for winning Doral. There's $50,000 to the winner at Westchester, $60,000 for the winner at Dow Jones, $55,000 for the Alcan champion, $50,000 to the World Series of Golf winner — more to the winners of four tournaments than the faded Hogan made in his career.

That fantastic proliferation of tournaments and the prize money available in the tournaments has lured more and more players, and better and better players, to the tour.

They have come in such increasing numbers that the tour-namment players division of the PGA has had to set up standards to keep the number down. Prospective players must go through regional qualifications, then successfully complete a competitive school at PGA headquarters in West Palm Beach, Fla., to gain an approved players card which allows them to compete on the tour.

But that's not the end. The players still are subject to review, and a certain number of cards are picked up each year. Still, however, there are more players than there are spots in the various tournaments.

On a routine open tournament there are 144 in the field. And there are about 250-300 players on the tour on a regular basis. There are about 800 who compete at one time or another during the year.

It's that burgeoning crop of players who don't make it into the tournament field, that very evident symptom of growing pains, that is the basis for most of the problems.

The commissioner, Joe Dey, a long-time former executive director of the U.S. Golf Association, is the man primarily charged with finding solutions to some of the almost insoluble problems.

He said earlier this year that two of his chief projects would be negotiation of a cohesive television contract and institution of a program whereby more players can compete each week.

Television is a problem in that five networks have at least a piece of the action this year. Some tournaments, such as the U.S. Open and the Masters, conduct their own negotiations. For others, particularly the celebrity tournaments, the Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Danny Thomas and Andy Williams, the principal sponsors have their own tie-ups with specific networks.

But large as that problem may be, it's the scramble for positions in the field, the heavily odds-against struggle of scores and scores of players simply to get a chance to compete for the big purses that causes the most rumbling and poses the biggest headache.

TV Awards for 1970 Announced

NEW YORK (AP) — Pianist Arthur Schnabel and Edwin O. Reischauer, former U.S. ambassador to Japan, have won Emmy awards from the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

They were among five individuals and 10 network television news and documentary programs named winners Monday. The awards will be formally presented June 7.

Rubinstein won for individual achievement as commentator on the NBC documentary about himself. The program, produced by George A. Vicas, also won an award in the cultural document-

Monday night the first games of baseball for the season, First National dumped Citizens, 6-1, while Anderson-Frazier beat Jaycees 5-1.

First National got 3 runs in the first inning with 2 walks, a double by Paul Young and a triple by Jim Johnson. They added 3 more runs in the 4th inning, while Gary Rhodes had the only run for Citizens.

Anderson-Frazier and Jaycees played even until the 4th inning when a bases loaded triple by Mike Newton sparked a 4-run rally for the victory.

High GOP Men Check Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., scheduled a visit to Jackson State College today to show "strong evidence of national concern over the tragedy which has occurred there."

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell toured the campus Monday and renewed his pledge for a thorough investigation of violence which resulted in the deaths of two young blacks from police gunfire early last Friday.

Brooke, who announced his plans in Washington in a letter to Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said his visit was requested by Charles Evers, Negro civil rights leader and mayor of Fayette.

Mitchell ordered Justice Department investigators to look into the Jackson State situation last Friday and came here for a first hand account of the probe's progress.

He met for more than two hours with Mayor Russell Davis and Dr. John A. Peoples, president of the predominantly Negro college, but declined to comment on the investigation.

In a brief statement to newsmen after the conference, Mitchell said he flew here "because of the concern of the President and myself about what happened."

Mitchell was scheduled to speak at a meeting of the Delta Council in Cleveland, Miss., today. Civil rights leaders warned there would be a statewide protest if he did so.

Negro leaders said the council, an organization of planters and businessmen in the Mississippi Delta, is a "racist organization."

A similar double winner was "The Japanese," a CBS News program under executive producer Perry Wolff. Reischauer won for individual achievement as commentator on the program.

"Fathers and Son" also received an Emmy in the cultural documentary class. Ernest Lester was its executive producer on the CBS News Hour.

In the category of special events, CBS news commentator Walter Cronkite won an individual award for his reporting of Apollo 11.

In the same category awards went to NBC's "Apollo: A Journey to the Moon" (Apollo 10, 11 and 12) and NBC's coverage of the solar eclipse.

In the news documentary programming category, "Hospital," a documentary of the National Education Television Journal, was a double winner. Emmys went to the program and to its director, Frederick Wiseman.

Another Emmy went to "The Making of the President, 1968" shown over CBS.

Magazine-type programming awards went to the "Black Journal" series on NET and to NBC reporter-writer Tom Pettit for his "Footnotes to 25 Nuclear Years" shown on "First Tuesday."

Two Emmys were awarded for segments within regularly scheduled news programs: "An Investigation of Teen-age Adultery—Odyssey House" on the NBC Huntley-Brinkley Report; and "Can the World Be Saved?" shown on the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite.

New Holiday Inn for L.R.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Plans were announced Saturday for a 12-story Holiday Inn with convention facilities to be located in downtown Little Rock. The Arkansas Hotel Corp. will construct the facility and lease it to Holiday Inns Inc., a spokesman said. Plans call for completion of the $4.8 million project by December 1971.

Negroes in Congress Hit at Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — All nine Negro members of the House, charging the White House with snubbing them, say President Nixon has failed to meet his responsibilities to America's black citizens.

In a statement signed by the nine and read to the House Monday by Rep. William L. Clay, D-Mo., they said the President has retreated on civil rights commitments, creating an "alienation as deep as it is dangerous" between himself and the nation's blacks.

The statement pointed to what was described as Nixon's failure to answer the nine's request for a private meeting on racial matters as evidence of the administration's apathy toward the problems of blacks.

Clay said they first asked for the presidential meeting in a letter Feb. 18. The only reply, he said, was an April 20-dated letter signed by a minor White House staff member saying Nixon was too busy for such a conference.

Clay quoted the letter as adding the representatives might hear further from the White House "if an appropriate time arises."

In the 90 days that have passed since their request, the statement said, Nixon found time to see golfers, entertainers, representatives of 11 veterans and patriotic groups and many others.

He "even found two days to cajole France's President Pompidou" amid the many cocktail parties and state dinners at the White House, the representatives declared.

Nixon's refusal to meet with them "suggests that he prefers to handpick the spokesmen for Black America," they also said.

"The President... has ignored his responsibility to our people," they went on. Through the administration voting rights policy, the Supreme Court nomination of "two Southern racists," and its stand on school desegregation, blacks and all poor Americans "since January 1969 have truly known what it means to be forgotten."

"If there is a potential for this nation to fail, it exists here in the United States more surely than in our correction of mistaken involvement in the affairs of Indochina."

The statement complained there is no line of communication from the White House to blacks, who "constitute by their very numbers and conditions one of the largest underdeveloped nations in the world."

The signers, all Democrats, were Clay, Rep. Charles Diggs of Michigan, Robert N. C. Nix of Pennsylvania, Adam Clayton Powell of New York, Augustus Hawkins of California, Louis Stokes of Ohio, Shirley Chisholm of New York, William L. Dawson of Illinois, and John Conyers Jr. of Michigan.

Truck Wage Pact Still Snarled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teamsters have accepted by a 7-5 margin what their leader, acting union president Frank E. Fitzsimmons, called the best national trucking contract in history.

But Teamsters in Chicago refused to go along with the national pact and have reaffirmed their intent to stick with a higher wage demand that some Chicago trucking firms have agreed to.

The national contract, affecting 425,000 drivers, provides for pay hikes of $1.10 an hour, improved pensions, health benefits, vacations, holidays and other benefits.

The Chicago Teamsters and the independent Chicago Truck Drivers Union "are solidly determined to get the $1.65 package on a 36-month, not a 39-month, contract as was approved nationally," said Louis F. Peick, secretary-treasurer of one local.

In Chicago, local carting companies make up the large percentage of those who have signed the higher hourly wage pact. An attorney for one of Chicago's main truck lines said the large, long-distance haulers

All three students have held offices in high school. Ronnie is president of the senior class and was also president of his junior class. All three students are four year lettermen in basketball.

Ronnie was accepted his scholarship from Henderson State College where he plans to attend this fall. Ronnie's major will be in courses leading to law.

couldn't afford the 55-cent-an-hour difference.

Approval of the contract came in a mail referendum, which was tallied by Teamsters under Labor Department supervision.

The national negotiations can be reopened if any signing company grants higher wage hikes to any Teamsters local. A union spokesman said that, if Chicago negotiates more, new negotiations will be opened.

Armstrong Takes ASNA Desk Job

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The first man on the moon, astronaut Neil Armstrong, has closed the door to his chances for another moon flight, announcing he would take a desk job in Washington.

The 39-year-old spaceman who commanded the Apollo 11 moon landing mission becomes head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's aeronautics program in Washington on July 1.

The move takes him out of the astronaut corps, but Armstrong said Monday he planned to keep his flying skills sharp by flying helicopters, jets and sailplanes. As head of the aeronautics program, Armstrong will oversee NASA research into all types of aircraft. The program is scheduled to receive $87 million in funds for fiscal year 1971.

He will succeed Charles W. Harper, who is being reassigned to assist Dr. Werner von Braun in planning future manned space flights.

Armstrong was at the controls when the Apollo 11 lunar module landed on the moon's Sea of Tranquility last July. During the early morning hours of July 20, he walked down a ladder and became the first man to step on the lunar surface.

He and astronaut Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. walked on the moon for almost three hours while the third Apollo 11 crewman, Michael Collins, orbited overhead in the command module. Armstrong's exit leaves only

EARL O. NEAL and GEORGE PURVIS

George Purvis, Chief of the Information and Education Department, Arkansas Game and Fish Commission, showed a beautiful film, in color, of free-flowing streams in the Northern Arkansas and Southern Missouri Ozarks, when the Hope Rotary Club met last Friday at the Town and Country. Taken during all four seasons of the year, the film showed remarkable shots of fish and fauna as well as breath-taking scenery.

The pictures and their accompanying narration related the story of conservation in a most graphic way and stressed that visitors to such areas would benefit all if they would "take nothing but pictures and leave nothing but tracks." Earl O'Neal arranged for the program and introduced the speaker.

Jack Beaty presided over the meeting in the absence of the president and the vice-president and welcomed the club members and guest speaker.

Aldrin of the Apollo 11 crew still in the astronaut corps. Collins left last year to become assistant secretary of state for public affairs in Washington.

Armstrong said he had "a lot of reservations" about leaving the space program, but "I don't think that it will be a permanent parting. I foresee that space and aeronautics will not always be so far apart."

He said the space shuttle, planned as a reusable spacecraft which can fly into space and then land on earth like an airplane, "will require the best of both space and aeronautics."

Armstrong is currently serving on the board investigating the Apollo 13 accident. He is scheduled to travel to the Soviet Union on Saturday to speak at a meeting of the Committee on Space Research, an international organization meeting in Leningrad.

Supt. Howard Miller of the Carlisle schools said in a letter to the attorney general's office that withholding of the funds was creating a financial burden on all governmental agencies that share in the local tax revenues.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Tom Tanner said in an opinion sent to Miller that withholding revenue to pay the deficit and the current expenses of the assessor's office is valid. Tanner said more money than normally would be set aside for the assessor's office over a three-year period to pay off the deficit.

Navy League Criticizes McNamara

MEMPHIS (AP) — The president of the Navy League, James M. Hannan, feels that former defense secretary Robert McNamara hampered naval development.

Hannan, in Memphis for the national meeting of his group, also late Monday discussed the Cambodian situation and supported President Nixon's policy.

Hannan said the United States presently faces two major problems—building of both a modern merchant marine and a modern Navy.

He said many Navy ships of the line are much older than the men who sail them. He said McNamara's policies on the Navy are responsible for the obsolescence.

GI Raid Into Laos Admitted

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has acknowledged small numbers of American troops have ventured briefly into Laos and might do so again.

Testifying Monday before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the Pentagon chief did not go into detail on the Laotian incursions, but he ruled out future large-scale American military operations in Laos.

U.S. forces, he said, have entered Laos only in "protective reaction" situations—hot pursuit of enemy troops fleeing South Vietnam, rescue operations, or in support of air strikes against the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The secretary made the statement shortly after the Florida White House stated there are no American ground forces in Laos and "no change in our activities in Laos."

"Our forces in Vietnam have had that particular authority," he said of the protective reaction into Laos, adding his belief it does not violate a congressional ban on the use of U.S. ground forces in Laos or Thailand.

But Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairman, said there is nothing in the record to suggest the legislative bar on U.S. ground forces in Laos allows any exemption for protective reaction strikes across the border.

The White House also declined Monday to comment on a report that South Vietnamese troops were fighting in Laos. Laird said only that American advisers sometimes accompany South Vietnamese troops into Laos.

Nixon has declared that no U.S. ground troops were involved in the fighting, adding that 1,040 Americans, including diplomats and advisers, are stationed there.

When questioned about Cambodia, the secretary refused, as he has in the past, to rule out continued U.S. air strikes on North Vietnamese sanctuaries in Cambodia after American troops have left.

He also said such strikes might be launched at targets more than 21 miles from the Cambodian border, the limit Nixon set for American troop operations.

Laird also told the committee he had not anticipated the extent of the protests the Nixon order would produce.

"I did not estimate that as accurately as perhaps I should have as a politician," he said. "But I don't think that anyone could anticipate the situation at Kent University or some of the other ... confrontations that have taken place."

"I do feel, however, that the support for the President of the United States is very strong," Laird said. "I believe there is no question that a majority of the American people support the President ... the desire of the President to destroy the sanctuaries."

Herbert Klein, director of communications at the White House, said in Chicago U.S. military operations in Cambodia are a "story of success."

He said reports from the battlefields indicate American troops in two weeks have captured some 8.5 million rounds of ammunition and 9,100 weapons at enemy bases.

"This was more than was seized in the last year in Vietnam," he said.

The report of captured arms was issued the same day a Defense Department spokesman called an alleged message from Laird to the U.S. commander in

HOPE (ARK) STAR,

Vietnam a "phony." Newsweek magazine, which said it stood by its story, reported Laird had sent a message to Gen. Creighton Abrams saying the American public "would be impressed" by the capture of high-ranking prisoners, major enemy headquarters and arms caches in Cambodia.

In other areas, the U.S. State Department has endorsed a proposal by 11 Asian and Pacific nations calling for an Indochina peace conference to preserve Cambodia's neutrality.

The statement was issued at Jakarta, Indonesia, and urged reactivation of international control machinery to preserve Cambodian neutrality.

The incursion into Cambodia also prompted Red China to cancel talks with the United States scheduled Wednesday in Warsaw. The Red Chinese statement cited an "increasingly grave situation" has been created by American action in Cambodia.

Thought Gap Exists in Politics, Too

By TOMMY YATES
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Neal Sox Johnson, executive director of the state Republican party, said Monday that action taken by the Young Republican League Sunday was one reason "we have a communication gap."

The Young Republicans, in a two-day meeting here over the weekend, adopted four resolutions that brought a bombardment of telephone calls Monday to the state Republican offices here.

The resolutions urged further study before legalizing marijuana and, pending the study, urged the penalty for possession, sale and use of marijuana be reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor; legalizing abortions in certified hospitals; the General Assembly to legalize and tax gambling; and called for repeal of laws concerning sexual activity among consenting adults.

Johnson said about 75 telephone calls by party members were received at GOP offices and that most of the callers were critical of the Young Republican's action.

'March of Coffins' in Georgia

By ANGEL CASTILLO

PERRY, Ga. (AP) — Black-draped coffins on wagons pulled by mules lead a multiple-purpose protest march leaving here today.

The coffins, and predominantly Negro marchers walking behind them, are headed for the tomb of assassinated civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., about 120 miles northwest of Perry in Atlanta.

The march was organized by the Southern Christian Leader-been a communication gap between the youth and older people in past time as well as today," Johnson said. "I think there will always continue to be, but that doesn't mean we shouldn't attempt to communicate."

The YRs form an auxiliary to the state Republican party and generally are involved in support of candidates and various campaigns.

"We do not in any sense of the word try to dictate to them," Johnson said. "Neither does their expression serve as an indication of the attitude of the senior party."

The chairman of the YRs automatically becomes a member of the state Republican Executive Committee and at a committee meeting, the chairman would have the opportunity to present any resolutions for consideration by the committee.

Johnson said, however, he had not talked to the new YR chairman, Tom Dillard of Little Rock, and did not know whether Dillard would offer any of the resolutions adopted by the YRs to the Executive Committee.

In a prepared statement issued following a telephone interview, Johnson said he did not condemn or condone the resolutions.

"I think there has always ship Conference (SCLC), the Atlanta-based civil rights organization founded by King.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, who succeeded King as president of the SCLC after King's assassination in April 1968, said the march was being held to protest "the violence, brutality and killings that have thrown America into a national emergency in recent weeks."

The protesters include U.S. war activity in Southeast Asia as one of their targets. Abernathy also spoke of marshaling public support for the Voting Rights Act and the 18-year-old vote.

Perry, a city of about 8,000, some 40 per cent Negro, has been the scene of recent SCLC-led protests involving school affairs and alleged discriminatory hiring practices in city businesses.

On Saturday, the marchers and persons from other states plan to gather at King's tomb, then march to downtown Atlanta past the State Capitol and on to King's alma mater, Morehouse College.

A rally is scheduled at which speeches are planned by Abernathy, King's widow, State Rep. Julian Bond, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and David Hilliard of the Black Panther party.

The march starting point here was the Spring Street Annex, an old building in the Negro section that used to be a school and now serves as a community center.

The marchers will be escorted by members of the 12-man Perry police force, Houston County sheriff's officers and state troopers.

At Fort Valley, 11 miles away, the marchers hoped to be joined by a contingent of students from all-Negro Fort Valley State College, scene of recent arson incidents.

From Fort Valley, the schedule calls for a 20-mile march to Macon on Wednesday, another 24 miles to Forsyth on Thursday, 26 miles to Griffin on Friday and a final 40 miles to Atlanta on Saturday.

Meanwhile, at the Spring Annex, Negro leaders and community blacks met and sang freedom songs past midnight while the pine-wood coffins were brought in to be covered with black cloth.

"They can't jail us all," was the refrain of one of the songs sung enthusiastically by about 200 youthful blacks jamming the old auditorium.

Anti-War Strikes at 265 Schools

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Eighteen days after President Nixon sent American combat troops into Cambodia, student protest strikes were under way at a reported 265 colleges. However, the disorders and scattered violence which characterized the first two weeks of protest have subsided.

On many of the nation's other campuses students were quietly organizing for political action aimed at forcing a rapid end to American military operations in Indochina.

The student strike information center at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., said student strikes were continuing on 265 campuses. About 150 of these schools are among the nation's 1,500 four-year colleges and universities. The others include junior colleges and specialized institutions of higher education.

About a dozen schools remained officially closed for the remainder of the school year.

Some 5,000 students at the University of California at Los Angeles blended their cries of "Peace! Peace!" with the throbbing music of Handel's "Messiah" during an offbeat "Music for Peace" antiwar demonstration.

Many of the students made the "V" peace sign with their fingers as the overflow audience sat on UCLA's main quad to hear the 350-voice, 120-piece university orchestra and choir perform excerpts from the oratorio.

At the University of Connecticut in Storrs, a student strike steering committee announced plans for a national coordinating center for political opposition to a House-passed bill dealing with defense facilities and the Industrial Security Act.

David Howe, a spokesman for the group, said the bill would allow the federal government to involve itself in campus unrest as long as the college concerned holds a defense contract.

Alex. H. Washburn
Water District and Pipeline
to Millwood

Here with are letters received this morning on the subject of a pipeline to Millwood Reservoir for which The Star is campaigning:

Editor The Star: I have been reading your editorials on the importance of a water line from Millwood Dam and Reservoir to the City of Hope. I agree with you 100 per cent on your proposal to build this water line and there is no way to figure the cost of water when a city doesn't have it available.

I am enclosing a copy of a letter from the Economic Development Administration, which should be of interest to the people in Hempstead County. In the original grant from the EDA to the Southwest Arkansas Water District, the grant was broken down into three phases. Phase I was the pumping station and canal (approximately 7 miles) from Millwood to the Nekeosa Edwards Paper Plant. The canal is large enough to furnish water to the cities of Ashdown and Foreman, and for industrial users in the area. Phase II is for a water distribution system from the Nekeosa Edwards Paper Plant to Foreman, Arkansas, and Phase III is for a water distribution system from the Millwood Reservoir to the paper mill site at Fulton and McNab, Arkansas.

We have an approved grant from EDA in the amount of three quarters of a million dollars to start Phase III of this project. As you can see from the enclosed letter, if we do not activate or have a show of interest from a municipality or an industry on this project before June 15, 1970, we stand to lose three quarters of a million dollars. Sincerely yours,

GEORGE W. PECK

Re: EDA Project No. 08-1-00464
Southwest Arkansas Water
District
Texarkana, Arkansas

Dear Mr. Peck: We are most concerned by the apparent lack of action by the Southwest Arkansas Water District regarding Phase II and Phase III of the above project. EDA has twice granted time extensions to the District so that it might solidify plans for completion of Phase II and Phase III. The District has reciprocated by allowing the time to pass with no progress reported to EDA. As you are aware, the second extension expired November 19, 1969. We have attempted to secure some comment from the District by our letter of February 6, 1970 and telephone call of February 17, 1970, as to the status of Phase II and Phase III and the course of action the District intends to follow concerning these phases.

Since we have received no response, we must assume that you do not intend to pursue these projects to completion; however, in a final attempt to elicit some response, we are extending your time for action to June 15, 1970. We must have in our hands as of that date a firm commitment from the Southwest Arkansas Water District as to how and when it will complete Phase II and Phase III of the above project. Unless a satisfactory commitment is received, I shall recommend to our Washington Office that the Economic Development Administration exercise its option to withdraw the balance of its funds for Phase II and Phase III of Project No. 08-1-00464 as of midnight June 15, 1970. ## Man Held in Abduction of School Girl

PARAGOULD, Ark. (AP)—A 31-year-old Greene County man was being held here Monday in connection with the alleged abduction of a 17-year-old girl.

State Police Lt. John Beech said officers were informed that Rita Scott, a pupil at Rector High School, had been abducted at gunpoint at Crowley's Ridge State Park. Officers said the girl was on a high school outing at the park.

Authorities said the girl escaped by jumping from a car. Officers said Miss Scott received scratches when she jumped from the car. She was hospitalized at Paragould.

Sheriff Mack Parker of Greene County said today Charles Winfred Hodges of Paragould has been arrested in connection with the alleged abduction and is being held in jail at Walnut Ridge.

Hodges was being held on an open charge.

According to Parker, a man walked up to the girl and a boy at the park about 12 miles west of Paragould about 1 p.m. pulled a gun and told the boy to "get lost." The boy ran to the nearest telephone to call authorities.

Parker said the girl told him that after riding around for about 10 minutes, she opened the car door and escaped. She told police she went to a nearby farm house and was taken back to the park and then to a hospital.

Alerted to the abduction by the girl's companion, Parker was en route to the park when he met the man's car in the opposite lane of traffic.

The sheriff, who was in a private car without radio or siren, turned his car around in the highway and attempted to force the man's car off the highway. The man turned down a dirt road and drove about a mile and a half before overturning his vehicle on a curve.

Parker said when he got to the wrecked car, the man began crawling out with a .22-caliber one-shot pistol in his hand saying, "I'm the law. Don't you come in here or I'll shoot your head off."

Parker said he replied, "I'm the sheriff. You'd better drop that gun before I blow your head off."

Parker said the man surrendered. Police records show that Hodges, an ex-Marine, was convicted.
